

PATSA - Petroamerica Terminal is a logistics center for oil products with storage facilities for 1.1 million barrels, situated at the Pacific Ocean entrance to the Panama Canal. It has two quays with 39-foot-deep berthing and a loading area for tanker trucks (local market) - the ideal facilities for meeting the needs of ships, barges and industrial customers.

Its close relationship and commitment to its customers has led it to increase its capacity by 350,000 barrels of jet fuel for use in the Hub of the Americas (Tocumen International Airport) and to take over a new quay for the auxiliary maritime industry (logistics operators and the Panama Canal).

The attitude of the PATSA staff along with their integrity and transparency form the basis of the excellent relations the company has with its customers.
